In Memoriam

Austin T. Stickells
(1914 - 1993)

A graduate of Washington University in St. Louis in 1938, Professor Stickells received his law degree from Boston University Law School in 1947 and held an MBA from Boston University as well. He was an intelligence officer with the Army during World War II and was wounded during an invasion of Germany and received the Purple Heart. Professor Stickells was a former dean and professor emeritus at Boston University Law School and specialized in anti-trust and business law and wrote a number of books on the subject. He joined the Suffolk University Law School faculty in 1983.

DEAN'S MESSAGE

To the Class of 1993:

Congratulations! On behalf of the academic deans, the faculty, the staff and the entire Suffolk University Law School community we express our pride in you and what you have accomplished as you complete your law school education. We believe that Suffolk has prepared you intellectually to enter the learned profession of the law. Your devotion to your studies is now reflected in the title of Juris Doctor, which you have earned.

Congratulations are also in order for those who have given support and encouragement during the long days and nights when you worked for your degree. At times it seemed like a lonely pursuit, but without the support of your parents, spouses, children, friends and/or classmates the road would have been even more difficult. Whoever it is, and however many they are, those who helped you reach this point in your life also take pride in your accomplishments.

At Suffolk you have studied under an outstanding faculty and in the company of outstanding classmates. They make up a major part of what we proudly call the Suffolk community. As you live your professional life in the law you will realize both the value of what you have learned here and the value of the friendships you have made. Many of these friendships will ripen yet more in the years ahead, and you will have the opportunity to reestablish others in future years at reunions of the class of 1993.

Also deserving of special acknowledgement are the students who worked to produce this excellent publication, the 1993 Suffolk University Law School Yearbook. The editors and staff have devoted numerous hours to the task of producing a yearbook worthy of the Class of 1993. Their work will remain a permanent memorial of their energy and devotion which I am sure all of you will enjoy for many years to come.

I share the confidence of the faculty that you are prepared to enter the practice of law or other career pursuits. We are also confident that you will ever after reflect credit on this Law School. We hope you will remain active in the various activities of the Suffolk Law alumni, and welcome you back at any time to visit with us.

With great pride in all your past accomplishments I now offer you my best wishes for health, happiness and success in the future.

Paul R. Sugarman
Dean and Professor of Law

DEDICATION

The 1993 graduating class of Suffolk University Law School proudly dedicates this yearbook to Professor Alexander J. Cella. Throughout his distinguished professional and academic life, Professor Cella has become a respected scholar and teacher both within and outside of the Suffolk University community.

Professor Cella received his juris doctor degree from Suffolk Law School in 1961. He was awarded his bachelor of arts in government degree cum laude from Harvard College and his masters in public administration degree from Littauer Graduate School of Public Administration (now the John F. Kennedy School of Government) at Harvard University.

Professor Cella's accomplishments are diverse and span his lifetime, from his educational achievements at Harvard University and Suffolk University Law School, to his days as a member of the House of Representatives for the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, and, finally, to his tenure as a Professor at Suffolk University Law School.

While serving in the legislature, he gained international fame for his efforts to right the injustice done decades earlier in the Sacco and Vanzetti trial. Later, he served as legal assistant and legal counsel to former Speakers of the House John F. Thompson, John F. X. Davoren and Robert H. Quinn, and Senate President Maurice A. Donahue.

Throughout his 22-year teaching career at Suffolk, Professor Cella has not only shared his knowledge of the substantive and procedural aspects of the law, he has also provided his students with continuous personal, professional and academic guidance. He has been an active advisor to several student organizations including the Suffolk University Law Review and the Catholic Lawyer's Guild. Explaining his rapport with students, he once said, "First you have to enjoy what you're doing and I do. You must be as accessible as you can and you have to put your cards on the table. Don't con them." The students have responded to his efforts with appreciation. The Law Review has honored Cella three times and the Student Bar Association presented him with the Frederick A. McDermott Award for teaching excellence in 1973.

In April, 1993, hundreds of friends and colleagues, including many past and present students, gathered at the Boston Park Plaza Hotel to pay tribute to Professor Cella. On that evening, Professor Cella was praised as "a friend to generations of students." In response, Professor Cella emphasized the importance of students in his life. The establishment of the Cella Scholarship was announced by Dean Sugarman that evening.

In recognition of his continued commitment to Suffolk University Law School and its students, the Class of 1993 dedicates this yearbook to Professor Alexander J. Cella.

MARKING TIME

By Arthur J. Anastos '93

here are a few collections in the apartment where I have lived throughout law school, but there is one collection at grows by the same increment each year. With posterity her than personal bias in mind, I have saved from each of the st several years one newspaper front page to mark time.

The first front page is from October of 1987. Black onday had struck Wall Street, the U.S. had struck two Iranian platforms, Bernard Goetz had been sentenced, and George einbrenner had hired Billy Martin for the fifth and final time. cking up the paper that day, you had to wonder in what order were going (a) broke, (b) to war, or (c) insane.

In the summer of 1990 — "on or about August 28th" as me would have us say — the Suffolk Law Class of 1993 began v school with a meeting in the Walsh Auditorium. It was by s time that the world had started to wind the U.S. a little hter. Iraq already had invaded Kuwait and the U.S. was ginning to respond.

Several people spoke in Walsh Auditorium that first orning of orientation, chief among them Professor Steven senstat. He spoke, if memory still serves me at all, about L.P.S. d Rogers v. Rogers, the case over which I would come to know veral sectionmates and the meaning behind a drink called a oo-woo". The name Saddam Hussein invariably sprang into ese conversations.

At some point late in the fall of first year, a member of L.P.S. section -- he was ROTC as an undergraduate -- was lled to active duty in the Middle East. After hurrying to marry fiance, he had learned that a minor medical condition would event him from serving in the Persian Gulf. The event was ginning to define First Year.

Much of the discussion around Thanksgiving of 1990 s whether we were headed irreversibly toward war, whether emicals would be used, whether the Middle East would offer the world a black cloud that would rise to alter our seasons. ould we extend the deadline, draw another line in the sand for ddam? The tones of the discussions had narrowed by the nter break, and the possibility was raised that other unloved Mediterranean countries (i.e. Libya) would seize the opportunity to become involved.

On January 16, 1991, I was late to meet two friends at the Boston Garden for the Celtics-Golden State basketball game. I had been watching the first network reports of the war at the top of the 7 p.m. newscasts. Most of those in attendance at Boston Garden learned of the beginning of the Gulf War from the Celtics' public address announcer. A moment of silence or prayer followed. Many of those seated around us in the first balcony considered leaving -- some to get to a television, some because the thought of being among 14,890 under one urban roof simply seemed stupid in light of Iraq's threat to unleash the "Mother of All Battles" if the U.S. attacked.

Late in the second quarter of the game, we watched as a number of security guards converged toward the first balcony area behind one of the baskets. Thousands began to rise to their feet to focus on what turned out to be a fistfight started by a drunken thrasher. Fights in the Boston Garden usually do not draw the majority to their feet.

On January 17, 1991, in between and in lieu of classes, students gathered around a television set that the University had placed in the second floor hallway of the Donahue Building. "Are we bombing yet?"

"Yeah, shhhh, Bernard Shaw's still live..." That night some of us who lived on Beacon Hill could hear the chanting and singing from those protesting the war at the steps of the Statehouse.

The first full day of the war, three friends and I walked away from class and toward my apartment to view what we could teleview. I didn't have cable television, but that didn't matter in the early days of The Gulf War. I took a picture of the three sectionmates sitting on my couch in the midday sun and watching the war. One of them is wearing his smirk, another a plaster cast on his forearm, and the third a tiny reflection on his black-rimmed eyeglasses of a fighter plane taking off from a U.S. aircraft carrier positioned in the Gulf. I placed The Boston Globe in my closet.

By the third day of the war, Bernard Trainor, Tony Cortesman and numerous other retired military types had provided us with a working knowledge of the range, capabilities and derivations of the SCUD missile. The chanting and singing outside our windows returned that night, and many others afterward.

The war would remain with us through the days of researching and writing our Moot Court briefs. The possible consequences of no-fly zones and Kurdish refugees starving in the mountains would parallel the end of classes and then the end of exams.

Whether the Gulf War contributed perspective or distraction, whether it served to energize or enervate the Class of 1993, it increasingly marks our time on Temple Street.

Last Will & Testament

We, the C section of the class of 1993, do make this our last will and testament. We appoint Paul Sugarman as executor.
We leave Alvan Brody a hawaiian shirt.
We leave Joe McEttrick a re-count.
We leave Bernie Keenan an autographed picture of Liz Tobin.
We leave Tom Finn white mittens and a Halloween mask.
We leave Vicky Dodd a Saturday Night Fever 8-track tape.
We leave Joe Glannon another bite at the apple.
We leave B.T. "Coach" Callahan an etch-a-sketch.
We leave Dickie Pizzano a cup of cawfee and a charge account at Shreve, Crump, & Low.
We leave Chuck Burnim a postcard from Irving Younger.
We leave Rich Perlmutter an updated teacher's edition casebook.
We leave Chuck Rounds pre-printed Rule Against Perpetuities business cards and "the shaft" (just kidding).

We leave all the rest residue and remainder of our probate estates to Charles Rounds, Jr.

Tia's 1991.

I can't believe First year's over

ODE TO ROUNDSEY

I think I shall never see something so lovely as a trust-EE;

Bear with me now for a time
while I consider rules in rhyme;

Ask first what purpose hath the drafter
but to torment children from the hereafter, because we know 'tis never too late
to pull the strings of your ES-tate,

Unless you violate the Rule,
So with the Rule you should not fool;
Anyway, once "A" is eternally resting
Why concern yourself with interests vesting?

But if you revoke by right,
Be prepared to jump to any height;

And should the tightwad make it spendthrift,
You can forget your Bernie Keenan gift;

Next forget about the duty to be loyal,
and pass me over the tanning oil.

If about your Prudent Man a "C" should whine,
Sink the income in a copper mine.
And if the "D's" don't see the hilarity,
Unload the principal in charity.

And Acceleration is just what happens
when you push the pedal of your new Benz, which didn't have to be hot-wired
because of the compensation you've required.

Of course, when it's time to account,
you'll have to fill in your own amount.

If the "C's" and "D's" express frustration
over your complete and total delegation,
look to the terms for exculpation.

And if that doesn't make them smile,
Offer to draft a codi-cile.

The 1993 Yearbook Staff

Onyen Yong, Israela Brill, Elvis, Lisa Modecker, Juan Belido, Alejandro Martinez, & Karen Nelson(not pictured)

In November of 1992 several graduating law students began to discuss the need for a commemorative book that would help to chronicle through words and pictures the journey of the Class of 1993 through their final year of law school. The goal was to produce a memento of the law school experience that would showcase the fine tradition of Suffolk University Law School; an annal that these new alumni would return to in the years to come and recall fond memories.

With this edition the Yearbook Staff hopes to make annual publication of a Suffolk University Law School Yearbook a permanent part of the Law School's tradition. It is the Yearbook Staff's sincere wish that each successive class find it as challenging, amusing and rewarding.

The Yearbook Staff was few in number but through the combination of their creative energies, the final result, this Yearbook, has more then exceeded the sum of the individual contributions. As Editor-In-Chief I would like to thank the following people, without whom this publication could not have been possible.

Dean Charles P. Kindregan for his endorsement, (no doubt against his better instincts).

Stephen A. Hilt, Yearbook Advisor, for his patience, understanding and tolerance for our many requests, (we still can't believe he went along with this).

James E. Nelson for all his support, (may he never know how much help he really was).

Onyen Yong - Layout Editor & Organizer, sine qua non, (quite literally).

Juan Bellido - photographer extraordinaire and instigator,. (by the way, where were you all of August?)

Alex Martinez - for his exceptional advertisement sales and championship promoting (very much needed).

Israela Brill -for her many hours spent taking orders in the lobby, for her willingness to assist wherever and whenever needed, and for coming in on her birthday to help with the final layout.

Karen Nelson - for the hectic job of coordinating the campus organizations and her many photo contributions.

Linda Leggett, Salina Millora, & Christine Nee - Thanks for coming through in the clutch by boosting sales and helping get this Yearbook out in a timely fashion.

Thanks to all the other day and evening students who took the time out of their demanding schedules to help make this project a reality. I wish the Class of 1993 the best of luck and offer these immortal words, 'no matter where you go, there you are.'

Best wishes,
Lisa A. Martinez Modecker '93 Evening Division
